Convention Events

JOHN W. DAVIS, once Ambassador to Great Britain, now lawyer for J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., the greatest British-American banking house, is nominated by the Democrats for President of the United States.

And that is THAT.

IF THOSE that nominated Mr. Davis merely plan another Parker campaign, taking Mr. Davis for political accident insurance, while they actually mean to elect Mr. Coolidge, the Democratic candidate for Vice-President will not be important.

If there be any idea of winning with Davis, the Democrats would have strengthened their ticket by nominating Walsh of Montana. Walsh would have multiplied by ten the strength of a John W. Davis ticket, and, as he is a Catholic, his nomination would have disposed of the religious question unfortunately injected into this convention.

HOWEVER, in view of various rather energetic things that he has said about gentlemen that direct Washington from Wall Street, Senator Walsh might not be comfortable playing second fiddle to J. Pierpont Morgan's lawyer.

THE OTHER DAY when Wall Street betting was 11 to 5 on Coolidge's election it was said here that the odds ought really to be 11,000 to 1, barring the unknown quantity of La Follette.

But 11,000 to 1 on Coolidge would be hardly fair, now that the Democratic nomination has been made. You can decide for yourself whether those odds should be made longer or shorter.

MR. DAVIS' nomination makes the La Follette campaign more interesting and more puzzling than ever.

Many farmers in the Northwest intended to vote against the Republican administration to express dissatisfaction with high railroad rates, and other troubles.

Is it likely that those farmers will leave the Republican party to vote for J. Pierpont Morgan's lawyer, who inevitably will be connected in their minds with the railroads managed and rates put up through the J. Pierpont Morgan office.

Mr. Davis' nomination must mean many Republican votes for La Follette that would have gone to the Democrats had a different Democrat been named.

IF REPUBLICANS are wise they will do something to please the farmers. The best thing at present is to concentrate on better prices for farm products, wheat, corn, oats, rye, etc. Wheat prices went up a couple of cents a bushel yesterday. Perhaps Republicans feel that they can now ignore the Democrats. But they can't ignore La Follette, and the only way to fight La Follette is with high prices for the farmers.

LUCKILY, THE PROSPERITY of this country does not depend entirely upon men nominated by political conventions. The nominee means sometimes as much as ONE per cent. of the total. The people, what they want, what they INTEND and what they THINK means 99 per cent.

THIS COUNTRY has one New Englander, moderate conservative, running for President. And it has a pleasant, estimable corporation lawyer, SUPERLATIVELY CONSERVATIVE, running for President.

It has in Senator La Follette an expression of the dissatisfaction among farmers and others.

LAST RITES HELD FOR CALVIN, JR.

Northampton Folk Join in the Tribute to President's Son on Way Home to Rest

Northampton, July 9 (I.N.S.)—Back to this little New England town, where but sixteen short years ago he was born, Calvin Coolidge, Jr., son of the President, was carried today to pause momentarily in the journey to his final resting place in the Vermont hills of his forebears.

It is here that Calvin spent his early childhood, and it was here that his heart-broken parents chose to record him one final tribute before the burial in the Coolidge family plot at Plymouth, Vt.

In the quiet red brick Congregational church that only a few years ago claimed the President's son as one of its youngest members, simple services were conducted over the rose-blanketed casket.

The Rev. Dr. Kenneth B. Welles, Calvin's childhood pastor, read the beautiful passages of the twenty-third Psalm, while old friends and playmates mingled with the highest of the land i nsilent tribute.

HIGH AND LOWLY PRESENT.

Seated before the casket were the immediate family, President and Mrs. Coolidge, bearing with fortitude their first great sorrow; John, the older brother, still dazed from the loss of his inseperable companion; the President's aged father, mourning over his favorite grandson; Mrs. Coolidge's mother, sorrowing in common with her daughter.

Grouped about the casket were the six marines from the Presidential yacht Mayflower, whom Calvin had admired so much in life, and who have watched over him constantly since his tragic death three days ago.

Present also were the great officials of the nation, members of the President's Cabinet, and behind them were the small and the great of Northampton paying final tribute to the son of their greatest son.

The church walls were banked with floral tributes from those who proudly had watched their former mayor rise to the greatest office in

BRYAN'S BROTHER CHOSEN TO RUN ON TICKET WITH DAVIS

New York, July 10. — With Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, nominated for Vice-President and John W. Davis of New York and West Virginia chosen to head the ticket as candidate for President, the Democratic National Convention finished its work early today.

William Jennings Bryan who had worked to prevent the nomination of Davis as head of the ticket said after nomination of his brother for second place that he "would support the ticket."

Nominated on the 103rd ballot that broke the ten-day ballot deadlock, Mr. Davis began his service as leader of his party by upsetting precedent in addressing the convention and going into conference with the managers to choose a nominee for the Vice-Presidency.

Governor Bryan was chosen for second place after his friends had placed before Mr. Davis and his conferees an argument for selection of a Western man of proven executive capacity, familiar with agriculture and in sympathy with the liberal sentiment of the country.

The nomination of the Nebraska Governor took only one ballot.

The nomination of Davis for head of the ticket was not entirely unexpected, as he had stood in third place in the balloting throughout a good part of the long succession of roll calls.

When it had been made unanimous,

HIJACKERS ROB TRUCK ON BRIDGE

Take 40 Cases of Beer, Give Youthful Driver His Carfare and Tell Him to "Beat It"

Armed hijackers today held up a "speed-wagon" containing forty cases of beer on the Boston end of the Chelsea Bridge.

Threatened with a gun the driver was pulled from the seat and told to keep quiet under the penalty of death.

The hijackers then gave the youth, whose name is not known, carfare and told him to "beat it, and keep your mouth shut."

The youth hastened to the Chelsea police and told them the story. They told him that the case was one for the Charlestown police. Also, that the last case so reported to the police of Boston resulted in the arrest and conviction of the hijackers, as well as that of the man whose truck was stolen. The latter was sent away to jail for illegal transportation.

The young man left the Chelsea police, ostensibly for station 15, in City square. Enroute he probably changed his mind about reporting the case, for the Charlestown police have not seen him nor heard from him.

The Chelsea officers did not take his name nor the registration number of the truck that was taken from him.

SLAIN LYNN MAN'S SON MAY BE IN SALEM

Lynn, July 10—With police authorities making every endeavor to place Charles Pascuale over the scene of the murder of Leroy D. Shanks, 37-year-old son of of the victim, still continues.

Although police inspectors maintain that the mysterious disappearance of the 17-year-old son has no connection with the murder of Shanks, they are anxious to question the boy and his companion, Norman Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, 22 Warren street, who also is missing.

Young Shanks was said to have been seen in Salem, near the federal road today, but local inspectors could find no trace of him. Young Peterson and the Shanks lad were last seen in the Shanks yard at 6:10 on the morning of the murder, according to Mrs. Shanks, just before the police arrived to inform the woman of her husband's death.

Portland, Ore. Elks Win Convention Choice for 1925

The alert delegates from Portland, Oregon, who distributed gorgeously illustrated folders depicting the charme of their city and environs were overjoyed when the Grand Lodge voted to hold the 61st convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in that city.

HAVERHILL MAN, FLEEING COP, IN 2-STORY LEAP

Haverhill, July 11.—Miller M. Law, president of the M. M. Law Coal Company of this city, leaped from a second-story window of his Tyler avenue home, in his nightclothing when police officers came to arrest him. He led them in a dash of a mile and a half through the rain, finally being captured in a barn on Lewis street.

In Central Court today he was arraigned on a complaint charging him in thirteen counts with larceny of $1,000 from Charles Chalouk, president of the People's Coal Company, of which concern Law was manager for a number of years.

JUMPS FROM WINDOW.

When Police Sergeant J. U. Ryan and Inspector Hubert Cassidy found Law at his home and told him he was wanted at headquarters the coal man pleaded illness. He said that he was under the care of a physician, who had ordered him to remain at home.

Ignoring the demands of the police, Law removed his clothing, donned pajamas and went to bed. Inspector Cassidy prepared to remain at the bedside until the arrival of Law's physician.

When Cassidy's back was turned, Law jumped from the bed, threw up a window and leaped out. Cassidy and Ryan, who had followed the inspector, gave chase. Law ran down Merrimack street to Main, then to Washington square, where he was captured.

GIRL AND FIANCE HELD AS EMBEZZLERS

Philadelphia, July 10.—Charged with embezzling $11,000 in securities and cash from the Merion Title and Trust Company of Ardmore, Miss Alva Goldsmith, secretary to the treasurer of the institution, was under arrest today, together with Sidney Stirling of Crisfield, Md., said to be the girl's fiance, who was accused of receiving part of the missing money. According to the police, $9,000 has been recovered.

BOSTON IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE

Arriving Lodges and Lively Bands Make Streets a Gay Carnival

By BERT FORD.

At eight o'clock today the greatest gathering of sightseers that has invaded Boston since the Y. D. homecoming review began pouring into the city through all the railway terminals to see the Elks' parade.

By 11 o'clock the stations were all crowded, the hotel lobbies were congested, the streets choked as the people added to and fro.

Shortly before noon a police official said there would be at least 500,000 on the streets to watch the Elks step out.

Many of those arriving were Elks who were unable to get here for the business sessions, but wouldn't miss the annual parade for all this old world holds.

ARRIVED IN REGALIA.

They arrived in regalia, with bands and banners and cheering adherents.

Members of the Boston reception committee were at the stations to welcome them. Groups of Elks, having nothing better to do, and being all set for the big event of the day, gathered with the welcoming committees to yell "Hello Bill," as their brothers arrived.

The Fall River train got in about 8 o'clock with 400 Elks from New York, Brooklyn, and Passaic, N. J. Esquire John P. Graney was in Worcester, July 10. — Bernard Bernier of Millbury was sued in Superior Court for $10,000 by Sophia Dapatille of Millbury, who claims she lost the sight of one of her eyes when a baseball thrown or batted by the defendant broke a window near which she was sitting, the flying glass causing the alleged injuries.

BROTHER OF W. J. BRYAN IS THE NOMINEE FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

STAMPEDE FOR NEBRASKAN AS DAVIS IS NOMINATED

mous after the great ovation the standard of every State was circled around the hall in a great demonstration of party enthusiasm which appeared to submerge the bitterness of the Tammany-Hearst contest since the opening day of the event on June 24.

But in some quarters there appeared disappointment and chagrin. Some of the south supporters felt deeply the failure of the candidate to land the prize, although Governor Smith himself appeared before the convention assured of all the whole-hearted support for the ticket and among those who had led the fight for McAdoo the result was taken much to heart.

McADOO'S MESSAGE

Mr. McAdoo, after the convention, sent from his hotel to Mr. Davis a telegram stating merely "Please accept congratulations on your nomination."

McAdoo's principal floor leader disappeared completely from the convention hall on the balloting approached its final stage, and the central group of McAdoo remained among the delegates sat glum and with drawn faces while the convention was making its final choice.

McAdoo headquarters, which for three weeks had been one of the busiest places in the convention section, was a scene bought of almost complete desolation, and it was said that the former secretary of the Treasury and members of his family would sail within a few days for a trip abroad.

William Jennings Bryan, who had worked to prevent the nomination of Davis, also expressed openly his disappointment, but barred a statement later, saying bravely that he would "support the ticket."

REVIVAL FOR BRYAN

The move to place the brother in nomination for the vice-presidency later appeared to greatly revive the spirits, and he told friends that the prospect of having a Westerner of the Bryan type on the ticket had led him to the conviction that a real campaign for progressive principles was in prospect.

As the balloting for the vice-Presidency proceeded he returned to his place in the Florida delegation and sat smiling broadly as state after state rose once more to shout the family name across the convention hall in response to the roll call.

Still later the Commoner issued a statement saying he was much pleased at the voting outcome.

"I announced as soon as the news of the nomination of Mr. Davis reached me that I would support the ticket," he said.

"I would have called on Mr. Davis, but inasmuch as I was working to obtain the Vice-Presidential nomination for my brother, I feared my visit would be misinterpreted. However, I shall see Mr. Davis before I leave New York."

In his address to the convention, Mr. Davis declared the platform adopted by the party was broad enough for all Progressives and ran ample to stand upon, and it was indicated that his later conference with convention officials over the Vice-Presidency was with a view to making certain that an appeal was made in the personnel of the ticket to the vote in the West as well as the East.

When the Presidential nominee appeared to be greeted by a prolonged ovation it was nearly midnight and a dozen names had been placed in nomination for the Vice-Presidency.

SECOND RECESS

A recess of an hour was taken to permit the leaders to confer over a choice and then the balloting began with many empty chairs in all the delegations and with the convention going forward sleepily and by main force.

Throughout, the voting for second man on the ticket was anticlimax to the strenuous and colorful days that had preceded it.

The only appearance of a fight was made by the supporters of George L. Berry of Tennessee, head of the Pressmen's Union, in whose behalf an active campaign had been staged. Berry's partisans kept up their fight to the last, objecting to a proposal made when Governor Ritchie had a bare majority that two-thirds rule be dispensed with and that the nomination made by acclamation.

Alvin Owsley of Texas, former commander of the American Legion, also rolled up a considerable vote until he withdrew his name in favor of the decision made by the party leaders.

Then State after State which had voted for him changed its vote to Bryan, and when the result of the single ballot was announced, it showed 729 for the Nebraskan—a handful more than was needed to nominate. There was no vote to make the nomination unanimous.

DAVIS' SPEECH

The Presidential nominee, John W. Davis in his address to the convention said:

"When I look at the banners erected throughout this hall and reflect upon all the States and territories they represent, I can see they do not constitute a phantom army, but represent millions of Democrats all over this broad land, ready, as they have been ready for 50 years, to do battle for the cause of liberty and freedom.

"We are a national party and in every State and territory whose banner rests upon this convention floor we'll do battle and win our victory.

"We are a national party, I think, because we profess faith in a great national creed. The principles of the Democratic party are honest in purpose, that a public office is a public trust, equal taxation, an open door of opportunity to the humblest citizen in all the land, loyalty, courage, honor, and helpfulness abroad.

PARTY PRINCIPLES

"These principles of democracy are as dear to the Americans of the East as to the Americans of the West, as highly revered by the Americans of the North as by the Americans of the South.

"In the name of this truly national creed and this truly national party, ready to do battle with all that challenge this creed, or any part of it, on this platform of Progress gives can stand, under this banner. All true liberals can rally, all democrats can, now, all Democrats will unite.

"As it was of more or less interest to a lookahead, I cannot be unmindful of the fact that this convention had its debates and its difficulties, but in truly Democratic fashion, it fought out its conflicts of opinion.

"All these things, which seemed to be serious disturbances for the moment, have only blown away the clouds and revealed the sun to shine on our victory and success.

"Under your mandate it will be my duty to speak further and more extensively on these and kindred themes as the campaign develops,

WIFE HAPPY AS DAVIS WINS NOMINATION

Refuses to Get Excited, However, When Radio Flashes News to Her

By LUCY J. PRICE

"How would you feel if it were your husband?" Mrs. John W. Davis greeted with an exceedingly happy laugh, when seen after her husband's nomination.

"Have I been excited, have I?" she asked Frank L. Polk, at whose home, No. 9 East 68th street, the nominee and family have been staying.

"Indeed she has not," Mr. Polk declared. "Mrs. Davis has been the calmest one among us, except the nominee himself. He wasn't even sufficiently excited to keep his ear to the radio when the nomination seemed imminent."

Mr. Davis was having his picture taken in the Polk home when the news of his nomination was flashed.

Mrs. Davis was as gracious, as quiet as befitted her manner, as if it were an ordinary at home day she was having.

"I am just a normal woman," she insisted to all questions about herself.

DEVOTED TO FAMILY.

Miss Cecile Russell, her sister, one of the most regular attendants at the receptions, and the only member of his family there when the nomination occurred, destroys Mrs. Davis does nearly everything well, but that she enjoys her family and friends and life generally too much to concentrate her energies in any special direction.

"I really can't talk for publication," Mrs. Davis pleaded.

"Anything anyone says at such a time sounds silly, I think. I look home, don't I? Isn't that enough?"

Mr. Davis came through the hall just then, and laid his hand on her arm companionably as he passed.

"You would just as soon be quoted as saying that you are proud and happy, wouldn't you?" he asked.

The nominee's wife looked up at him. He smiled and nodded. "If you are," he said.

HAVERHILL MAN PINCHED AFTER WILD CHASE

sily darted downstairs and out the front door of the house to give chase.

The fugitive jumped a fence and disappeared on Hilldale avenue. Cassily picked up his trail in a few minutes. Law displayed great speed and agility as he dashed through backyards, over fences and through deserted streets to the outskirts of the city.

Law eluded his pursuer for a time when he effected a crossing of Little River, a swiftly running stream in the northeast section of the city.

WALKS SLIPPERY PIPE.

A large water main built on a cement foundation, spans th stream near the St. James School. Law hesitated for a moment on the bank of the river then stepped on the slippery top side of the huge water pipe and started to cross.

Cassily came up puffing. He yelled to Law to halt, eli threatened to shoot. The fugitive kept on without a backward glance. He slipped several times and almost fell into the water below. Staggering, he reached the opposite bank. He glanced back, saw the officer on the other side, then fled out of Cassily's sight again.

The officer summoned help from police headquarters. Soon it was reported that a man was skulking in the vicinity of the barn of Sam Dobbin on Lewis street. Cassily hastened there.

Law, when discovered, hastened from one corner of the building to another, slipping by the officer at each turn. Finally Cassily cornered his quarry, grappled with him and placed the handcuffs on his wrists.

ALLEGE "STRAW" CUSTOMERS

Police allege that Law employed a cunning system in stealing thousands of dollars from the People's Coal Company while he was manager for the concern. They allege that he delivered coal in quantities to "straw" customers and that when legitimate orders were received he would sell the coal, delivering it from a cache which he maintained.

Law's alleged thefts were discovered, it is said, when a woman telephoned the company office to order a ton of coal. Law was not in the office and when the woman said she wanted "more than the eight tons just delivered" suspicion was fastened upon the manager.

It is alleged that an investigation of Law's accounts revealed thefts totalling $4,000 during the many years he was connected with the People's Company.

Three months ago Law established the M. M. Law Coal Company.

He married Bernice Laddeu, a dancing teacher well known in Haverhill society.

Law was admitted to $5,000 bail.

GERMANS PLAN TO RESTORE GRAIN DUTY

BERLIN, July 10—In an apparent desire to appease the German Nationalists and Agrarians the Ministers of finance, agriculture and national economy have manifested their intention to propose a law re-establishing the duties on imported grain, 60 cents per hundredweight for rye, and 72 cents for wheat.

The opinion prevails that the Agrarians are trying to exact this concession in exchange for their acquiescence in he laws giving effect to the Dawes report. Opposition from the socialists is predicted.

DORCHESTER AND SOUTH BOSTON DEMAND MORE LIFE GUARDS

At left, beach near Mosquito Fleet Yacht Club, in centre, beach at foot of M. street and at right, view of beach from Mosquito Fleet Yacht Club all the way around the Strand way to Columbus Park and Carson Beach. Along all the three-mile strip, from the Headhouse to Columbus Park, where 10,000 persons bathe in the waters of Dorchester Bay daily, during the Summer, there is not a life guard, except inside the inclosed beaches at L. street and two guards at Carson Beach, Columbus Park, near the Columbia road end of the Strandway. At Columbus Park recently a boy was drowned because the life guards were too far away to be of assistance. Citizens complain that the city should provide adequate guards along the entire Strandway to make bathing safe for women and children.

HEAT KILLS ONE, ANOTHER IS DYING

One man dropped dead during the hot wave, another victim is not expected to live and two others are at City Hospital.

A terrific thunder storm, which ruined much of the Elk's convention decorations on Tremont street, gave a slight set-back to the heat.

While 88 degrees was the highest the temperature reached in Boston, Wednesday, yet the humidity was so oppressive that in every section of Boston, even along the ocean the suffering was intense.

Following are this day's casualties as a result of the heat:

Dead: Robert P. Buttrick, aged seventy-five, manager of Salem telephone exchange. Dropped dead from heat prostration at his Summer home at Marblehead.

Stricken: John Reynolds of No. 15 State street, Marblehead, stricken with cerebral hemorrhage while opposite No. 3 School street. At Haymarket Relief Hospital: not expected to live.

Mrs. Nellie Moran of No. 88 Worcester street, South End, stricken at her home and removed to the City Hospital.

Unidentified white man about 60 years old, found unconscious on Center street, West Roxbury. At City Hospital.

DEDHAM MAN KILLED AS AUTO OVERTURNS

Peter Petrone, 24 years of age, of No. 29 Washington street, Dedham, was crushed to death beneath a heavy motor car which overturned while traveling at high speed on East street, Dedham, near the Westwood line.

With Petrone were Michael Marcello of East Dedham, owner of the machine, and two others. Marcello and the others fled from the scene before the arrival of police who were summoned by persons living on East street.

Later they were found and questioned. They satisfied the officers that Petrone's death was accidental and were allowed to return to their homes.

Petrone is survived by his wife and one child.

Lives are in Peril Through Neglect

Residents of South Boston and Dorchester are up in arms over the drowning of John Paul Faye, age 9, of No. 196 Boston street, at Carson Beach, Columbus Park, South Boston, which they claim was due to the insufficient number of life-guards stationed on the Strandway at South Boston.

In the three mile stretch of winding beach from the Head House clear around to Columbus Park, there is but a single life-guard except within the bounded confines of L street and two guards directly in front of the quarter-mile stretch in front of the Columbia Park Bathhouse, where the Faye boy met death.

Even here, residents claim, the protection is inadequate and cite as proof of their contention the drowning of the Faye lad directly in front of the bathhouse.

NEEDS MORE MEN.

According to assistant superintendent of the Columbus Park bathhouse, William F. O'Connor, the Faye boy was directly in front of the bathhouse, while the two lifeguards were at either end of the quarter-mile stretch just on the turn of their patrol when he went down.

O'Connor declared that his present force of two life-guards would be doubled so as to provide for three men at all times on this area and one man for relief.

The story of Fayette drowning has caused a furore among the residents further because of the fact that the floating barrels used to designate the channel did not seem to prevent often them any words of warning such as "Go not so far good boys" or "Danger!"

FATHER RAPS NEGLECT

Thomas Faye, father of the boy bitterly denounced the present administration for its neglect to provide sufficient guards.

"I can do nothing now that my boy is dead. That is always the way after a tragedy, but if the death of my boy can do no more than to call the attention of the Park Department or City Hall to the criminal neglect in failing to provide sufficient life-guards, and to prevent the drowning of other children, his death will not be in vain," declared the father.

"The present administration could well practice economy in other lines where the result will not be a matter of the toll of lives of little kiddies," he added.

"I also understand that when my boy was going down a woman rushed to the officer on the boat and urged him to save the boy but the officer replied he could not swim, and refused to go after the boy. The officer did rush into the bathhouse for help, but precious time was lost. Why should such an officer, efficient in other respects though he may be, be stationed on beach patrol if he cannot swim?"

WOMAN CALLS AID.

"The woman who saw my boy drown called the watchman, who ran inside and summoned the superintendent of the bathhouse, Morris Dineen. He went in swiftly and all and dived there. But if that third life guard was there, my boy would be alive today," said Faye.

Columbus Park is not the only spot for criticism. Residents point to the three stretches of beach on the strandway, one from Columbus Park to the Mosquito Fleet Yacht Club, a second from Mosquito Fleet to L street, and a third from L street Bath to the Headhouse, that are without a single life-guard. In spite of the appalling fact that at least ten thousand persons, mostly children ranging from infants to youngsters of 10 and 11, swarm to the beaches daily.

Residents are proud of the L street record of never losing one a person through drowning because of the inefficiency of life-guards, but point to the fact that the total area occupied by the three baths at L street, boys, men and the women's bathhouses do not occupy more than three hundred yards, yet in this small area there are six life-guards, two at each bathhouse, one being on duty all the time, yet this protected section represents only one-tenth of the beach area, and the same proportion of bathers.

MOTOR BOAT USELESS.

Even here the situation is not adequately covered. The motor boat of the city, that in former years used to be on duty, is stranded high and dry at the men's bath at L street, when it should be cruising the entire length of the two miles.

There are not enough life-guards even at L street, declare the residents, to do the job properly. True as it is, they say, there are enough men stationed at L street with life-guard ratings, but they are used in locker work.

There is only one guard on duty at each of the L street bath-houses when there should be two.

No criticism is made of the efficiency of the life-guards. They are all local boys who have proved time and time again their efficiency and heroism, but they can't be everywhere at once.

Gene Durgin, assistant superintendent at the L street bath-houses, admitted that the protection could well be increased if his force of life-guards could be doubled at L street, which would enable him to add an extra man to each bath-house and provide reliefs.

SEIZE BURGLAR SUSPECTS AT GUN POINT

Two men believed to be members of a New York gang attracted to Boston by the Elks' convention, were arrested at the point of a revolver by Sergeant Orrington Waugh of the Back Bay station as they were leaving the apartment house at No. 226 Bay State road. They carried a bag containing $2,000 worth of jewelry and clothing, stolen from the police say, from the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Tully.

The men arrested gave their names as T. F. Kelley of West Forty-fourth street, New York, and William J. Belmont, also of New York.

Occupants of the apartment house saw two men descend from a motor car and enter the building. They heard the motor of the machine running and when the pair did not emerge within a reasonable time the police were notified.

Sergeant Waugh arrived in front of the house in the station "Flivver" just as Kelley and Belmont were leaving with the bag.

The men surrendered when Waugh drew his automatic and ordered them to throw up their hands.

The bag and contents were identified as the property of Mrs. Juliette Tully who, with her husband is away for the Summer. A Massachusetts number plate, said to have been stolen in Marlboro, was found on the car operated by the alleged thieves. The machine is registered in New York.

WIFE'S 'CAREER' IS CAUSE, SAYS TENOR STEEL

Her Temperament Vs. "Actor's Disposition" Back of Marital Break

New York, July 10.—Stage temperament or just plain temperament—which?

Mrs. John Steel, wife of the "Pal like" tenor, says that the dimunition of an actor is used to put up with.

John Steel says that he is the most docile sort of a person, but that the management of his wife requires a great deal of patience.

It is this question that is back of their marital difficulties, which marked when Mrs. Steel sued for a separation and lost, and it yesterday is the defense in the suit for annulment by John Steel, her husband.

A glimpse was given to American reporter into the romance that led to Steel's refusal for a separation, many of those facts were brought out in the last trial of Steel's case.

The greatest hair in young women has to be the temperament, and it was for his wife to save that old hostility at a counter-acting.

He had married her in the belief that she would reform and come back to him as the mother of his child. While the case was pending he sued his wife for annulment, said his lawyer, and tried to effect a reconciliation, but it failed.

Steel charges his wife with abandonment. He alleges that when he returned home from a theatrical engagement in Baltimore he went to his wife's room and with whom she had told him she had been engaging.

This was in 1921, after the birth of the child. When he asked where she was, he declares, the relatives said she had moved to town.

He followed her and there she told him that she did not want to make a home for him, since then they have not been living together.

Mrs. Steel stated, as was brought out in her suit, a stage career, John Steel wants, as was also disclosed at the trial, a home and devoted wife. Each charges the other is hard to live with. Temperamental? That of an actor versus that of a woman. Which is worse?

CHILD 'ELOPER' DESERTS HIS LADY FAIR

Romance of South Boston Kiddies Wanes on Reaching Lynn Beach

Helen Chase of No. 1 Page's court, South Boston is mourning a broken romance although she only recently celebrated her seventh birthday.

Helen's young dream was shattered at Lynn Beach, when she was deserted by her knight errant, Stanley Polanesky, six years old, of Athens street, South Boston, who evidently took to his heels when Helen decided to go back to her mother.

But the romance was sweet while it lasted. There was the ride from South Boston to Lynn, a day at the beach, two hot dogs each and a trip to the 5-and-10-cent store, where young Polanesky gallantly purchased a ring, consisting of three shoe sets, and in his best manner presented it to Helen.

RING, TOO, DEJECTED.

But when the day was spent with the Lynn policeman on the beat Stanley was missing, even the ring had a dejected appearance, for its middle stone was missing.

It appears that the gallant Stanley, tiring of Helen, left the South beach and the romance was started on a speedy getaway.

Helen, left on the streets of Lynn, after being deserted by her lothario swain, drew the attention of the police. The girl was treated to a romance at the Lynn police station pending the arrival of her father, who escorted her back to South Boston.

ENDS IN HENHOUSE.

Equally as eager for adventure as the two South Boston youngsters was Joseph Dooley, age of No. 28A Lynn court, Lynn. His romance, however, came to an inglorious end in a very foul smelling henhouse.

Young Dooley started out to see the world. He spent a full day of it in the quest of adventure in and around Lynn. Then the Lynn police department and his parents received him late hours.

When darkness had long since settled over the shoe town, the next door neighbor of the Dooleys peered into the narrow confines of his hen pen where some of the fowl made unusual noises.

There in the grime of the floor of Joseph Dooley, Jr., lay asleep. Adventure had finally palled on him, and fourth of what was awaiting at home, he took refuge with the chickens. After being scrubbed and scrubbed, he was given something to eat and put to bed.

MAN MURDERS MOTHER OF HIS BRIDE

Then Wounds Wife and Self as Climax to Tragedy in Worcester Home

Worcester, July 10.—In a fit of rage born of jealousy over his bride of three months, Alcohol Shoteau shot and instantly killed his mother-in-law, shot his wife and then fired a bullet into his own head.

Shoteau is at the City Hospital and will die from the self-inflicted wound. His wife also a patient at the hospital, will recover.

The mother-in-law, Mrs. Rose M. Sampson, entered her daughter's home while the newly married couple were in the midst of a fight. The mother-in-law's interference in the quarrel cost the woman her life.

Shoteau and his wife, who was formerly Miss Rose Sampson, a prominent Worcester girl, married on night before. The husband accused his wife of running around with other men. The fight ended without violence, but twenty hours later it was renewed.

As ch mother-in-law entered the Shoteau home at No. 72 Salem street, she ordered her daughter to leave the place.

The enraged man's answer was a revolver shot, the bullet piercing Mrs. Sampson's heart.

"Now I'll get you," the infuriated man, gone mad with blood lust shouted at his wife.

He took quick aim and fired. The wife fell to the floor, a bullet through her body. The next instant Shoteau fired a bullet into his own temple.

While the husband was in a wild rage at the time of the triple shooting, yet a letter found in his pocket indicated that he had contemplated the deed. The letter was addressed to Shoteau's brother in Pawtucket, R. I. and said:

"Do not blame me for shooting them. They are the cause of my being discouraged. My mother-in-law is the worst trouble maker in the world. She is a two-faced woman and says she is going to put me in the crazy house."

PLAYMATES AND NEIGHBORS PAY FINAL TRIBUTES TO CALVIN, JR.

LEADERS OF NATION AT GRAVE OF YOUTH

the land, and who had felt a paternal feeling for that man's boy.

SERVICES ARE SIMPLE

The services were similar to those held Wednesday in the White House, simple in character, inspiring in nature.

Soft choir music from unseen voices, the quiet note of the organ all combined to bring solace to the hearts of the bereaved.

Promptly at 7o'clock (Eastern standard time) the funeral train drew into Northampton.

Almost immediately the President and Mrs. Coolidge and their elder son, John, left their car and retired to the Coolidge home, not maintained by Mrs. Coolidge's mother, Mrs. Andrew Goodhue. There the four stood, waiting for the time for the church services.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the bereaved family returned to the car containing the casket, remains of Young Calvin, which had been placed in a hearse and covered with a mantle of pink flowers.

Slowly then the long procession started up the main street of the town. Packed on each side of the route stood the city natives. Behind followed the immediate mourners and those who had come with them from Washington to represent the sorrow of the nation and the world.

SOLDIERS LINE STREETS

Soldiers lined each side of the street during the short journey, and head touchfully uncovered as the party went by.

Following the services at the Congregational church the mourners returned to their train and departed immediately for Plymouth, Vt., where Calvin will be laid to his final rest late in the afternoon.

Even as the funeral rites of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., were marked with simplicity here, so were they marked in the White House, in Washington, where the nations of the world paid tribute at the bier of the dead boy.

"Peace I leave with you. My peace I give unto you. Not as the World giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

HEARTENED PRESIDENT

Those words from the Gospel of John seemed to echo as the President and Mrs. Coolidge left Washington on the funeral train.

Those were the words spoken five hours earlier at the most affecting funeral services the White House has ever known. They lifted a day of warm sunshine, a quiet evening sky under which the departure from the capital took place. They lifted, also, the mood of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge. Several times on the verge of losing into open grief at their son's rites, they thoroughly composed themselves when the time for the journey arrived.

SYMPATHETIC THRONG

Official and residential Washington ceased its labors as the time drew near for services over the gray, soldier-guarded casket in the east room. Ground soundlessly before the windows of the famous chamber, closed hundreds of sympathizers. Up the south portico came the specially invited guests—high government officials, members of the diplomatic corps, ranking officers of the army and navy.

Promptly, the White House had awaited them all day long. Every arrangement had been completed. President Coolidge had set hour's work in his office. He and the bereaved mother had taken their last look, amidst the rose of Sharon, to remember.

There started punctually the services for the repose of the soul of a boy approaching manhood. It was designed in love and beautifully carried out.

COOLIDGE HOME AT NORTHAMPTON AND THE WHITE HOUSE

Calvin Coolidge, Jr., is shown riding his bicycle in the center. Insets are left: the Rev. Kenneth Wells of the Edwards Congregational Church, Northampton, who conducted the services today in his little church, and the Rev. Arthur No ble Parker, pastor of the First Congregational Church Washington, D. C., where the Coolidge family attended, who officiated in the East Room of the White House on Wednesday.

NEIGHBORS PAY LAST HONORS AT PLYMOUTH

Plymouth, Vt., July 10.—The hamlet in the Vermont hills, where Calvin Coolidge was born, sadly prepared today to greet a mourning President.

In the little hillside cemetery here, where members of the Coolidge family have found their final resting place since the range first came to Plymouth in 1780, a grave had been made ready to receive the dear dead's youngest son and namesake, and the neighbors were gathering to join with representatives of State and nation in laying the last honors on Calvin Coolidge, Jr.

Nothing was left undone in preparation for this, the first visit of the President to his native village since he interrupted a Summer vacation at his father's home here and Adams to become a nation's Chief Executive.

Governor Redfield Proctor of Vermont came to aid state and local officials and neighbors in making arrangements. All was ready today for the arrival of the presidential party and the body from Washington.

ESCORT OF CAVALRY.

The presidential train was expected to arrive at Ludlow, eleven miles away and the nearest railroad point to Plymouth, at 2:30 o'clock, daylight time. A hearse from Wood stock awaited the train's coming at Ludlow, and townspeople of that place have provided automobiles to convey the party over the road to the mountain here.

Troop B of the Third Cavalry, Camp Devens, and Company B, Vermont National Guard, under the personal command of Adjutant-General Herbert T. Johnson of Montpelier, will act as escort for the funeral procession and will patrol the mountain road between Ludlow and Plymouth.

While the presidential party is coming to Plymouth and returning to Ludlow, traffic on the highways will be one way only. While the simple service of prayer is in progress at the graveside all activities will be suspended in Ludlow and other neighboring towns. Mills and places of business will be closed.

One of the tasks that fell to the lot of the local road commissioner was to make access to the little secluded burial ground easy for the unprecedented throng expected to flock that way for the interment of a President's son. In a single day a corps of sixty roadmen, assisted by a mile in length, leading to the cemetery was built yesterday into a substantial gravel foundation capable of bearing heavy traffic.

TOWNSFOLK AT GRAVE

While those who planned the arrangements kept in mind the dignity that hedges a President and his entourage, the wise of the homely folk who knew the Coolidges, father and son, as friends and neighbors to pay their tribute of respect at the graveside was not overlooked. Across the road from the cemetery the hay was cut from a meadow so that the public might gather there to witness the last ceremony.

Calvin, Jr., Best Type of U. S. Boy, Says Pastor

Northampton, July 10.—What a fine, manly boy Calvin Coolidge, Jr., was, is the tribute which the Rev. Kenneth Wells speaks as a type of what most parents desire.

The Rev. Kenneth P. Wells, pastor of Edwards Congregational Church, Northampton, conducted the services for the young executive in the East Room of the White House in Washington today. Dr. Wells was a classmate of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., at the famous secondary school of Washington and Mrs. Coolidge's sons.

"He was a fine boy, whom you could depend, willing to work hard and play the game. He was an all-around quality boy, which endeared him to many friends and drew others to him with bonds of friendship such a personality has fostered and at the victorious spirit and mind of who knew him but a moment to day with the sorrowing parents.

AS CHILD AND BOY.

The Rev. Wells, who had known young Calvin as child and boy, spoke the sorrow of the parents for the great esteem in which he was held by all who knew him, and to whom he now has returned to dust.

Officiating at the simple service in the little church here, Rev. Dr. Wells declared that "one cannot know such a life and not know something of the divine in man. One cannot watch the growth of such a spirit at home, in the school, in the church without being aware of the presence of God. And if Calvin Coolidge, Jr., has helped us to see on a little closer to the Heavenly Father, what then? Then must the meaning of this life closed so early appear; then must there come consolations from that Father that must the heavy yoke of trouble be lifted and the old work taken up heroically again.

SOMETHING TRIUMPHANT.

"There is something quite triumphant about this life which has been taken away," the orator said. "It was young, but so was the first command of the Lincoln delegation. He knew what was expected of him. When they raised Senator Grabiec, a very muscular Elk, would a massive waist, and a white-garbed band filled out of the last car, playing ragtime.

LOTS OF CHEERING.

There was lots of cheering and a good bit of hoodlumism and everybody agreed that the marchers were blind and the stage all set for the inspects of the best parade ever.

The New Haven Railroad ran eleven special trains into the city for the parade. Five hundred Elks and friends of Elks arrived at 9:30 on a special train from Portland. At 9:45 a special from Norwich brought 800.

The Hartford train unloaded ten of the finest Elks that have come to town. Providence sent 800. A special from Waterbury had 500 aboard. Fall River sent 300 by special train, thousands by trolley and by automobile. Other trains were from New Bedford, Newport and Nashua.

Between 25,000 and 30,000 will march. There will be four main divisions, with four Hoglund lodges making up one of them. The column will start from the junction of Arlington street and Commonwealth avenue at 2:30.

It will swing to the east on Beacon street to the Public Garden, where it will be reviewed by Governor Cox and staff, down Park street to Tremont street, where it will be reviewed by Mayor Curley, on Berkeley street, Park square, to St. James avenue, where it will be reviewed by the officers of the Grand Lodge, and Grand Marshal Goodwin, to Columbus avenue, where it will be dismissed.

The column will move several feet to pass a given point. It will be many miles in length. Those will be boats and bands aboard. Each lodge will vie with the others in showing regalia and in military snap and appearance.

The Sparks Wilmington Zouaves of Jackson Lodge, Michigan (the Purple Devils of Akron and the Boston Zouaves of Boston will be there in one of their customary uniforms, and many of the lodges will have on special forms today.

The striking uniforms and fine great variety will add to the appearance and the color of the parade. The Pennsylvania and other delegations have surprises in store.

Although it is expected that fine weather, excepting among local showers will hold off as they did on Wednesday and Thursday.

No delay has been overlooked by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, the commissioner of traffic, Joseph Hurley, and the marshal. Certain streets are to be closed to traffic. Every member of the department will be on duty.

Extensive squads of police detailed men will be on the alert for pocketers and confidence workers. Sentry received warnings to make a wide berth of Boston today.

For once the business men need no care to be a minority minds as parade time. In some cases business houses will remain closed, and all that has been ordered to "stand at attention facing the marchers on the sidewalks and in windows."

Another one of officers will walk behind the rows of spectators to guard against pickpockets. Anything and roughness, especially where widely spectators and children gather.

The parade will be the first ever broadcast by radio from a street, seemed for WNAC, the Shepard Stores. Fifty Years, the comedian, and Joseph M. McDonald, of Wesson Lodge will describe the parade by radio fans.

Parade prizes are to be awarded to lodges having the greatest aggregate number, based on numbers registering and appearing in line. The first prize in this class will be $350, the second $200 and the third $150.

For the greatest aggregate mileage based on the number registering and appearing in line of lodges West of the Mississippi the first prize will be $250, second $150 and the third $150.

For the most novel display open to all lodges outside of Boston the prizes will be $500 for the first, $350 second and $250 third.

The lodges with the largest membership in line outside of New England will receive the first prize $250, second $150 and $100 third.

New England lodges outside of Boston with the largest number ship in line will receive first the prize $150, second $100 and third $50.

For the most attractive float the first prize will be $400, second $300, third $150.

For the best appearance in line in all lodges outside of Boston, a first prize of $250 will be awarded, second $250, third $150.

Grand Esquire Charles H. Grakelow, grand marshal, Brigadier General John H. Dunn, veteran of the Philippine and World Wars and former street commissioner of Boston, in chief of staff. The assistant chiefs of staff are Lieutenant Colonel H. Nee and John J. O'Connell.

Lieutenant Colonel Frederick L. Bogan, a Yankee Division veteran will command the first division. Captain William J. McKenna will command the second division, Captain James R. Nicholson will command the third or New England division and Captain John F. Winston, the Fourth division.

ZOUAVES' TENTS FLOODED BY DOWNPOUR

The deluge or rain flooded a dozen tents of the Wilmington Zouaves of Jackson, Mich., and delayed for two hours the drill which they put on for the Cambridge Lodge of Elks.

The members are directly against the lively along Commonwealth avenue, and at least a dozen men were filled with six inches of water, removing many of the occupants and impressed bridges were provided.

The Zouaves were in their tents preparing to go with Captain Rib Sparks and Lieutenant Paul Pugsley to the home of Cambridge Elks, and the terrific downpour came simultaneously.

Fully half or at least a dozen men marooned in their tents, among them "Phil" Sparks, seventy-four years old, the veteran member who was made up to become host.

Who's Who Among Visiting Elks

Pennsylvania of Washington delegates came up to union. Among them were James L. Halderson, secretary, and Daniel D. Sullivan, James E. O'Neil and Robert F. Crowley.

Harris C. Hasey of Philadelphia, assistant fire marshal, also quartermaster-sergeant of the Mounted Guard, and Captain F. Ellis, State prison inspector, are with No. 2.

They say that they never had such a time.

The tallest Elk arrived today from the Bronx. He is George Dowling, 7 feet 3½ inches tall, and the scales at 318 pounds. "I haven't stopped growing yet," he exclaimed. Dowling, Joe Mauer of Montpelier was taken up in his arms.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Schrader of Pittsburg gave it odious in the Copley Plaza to a party of 250.

"Just say Boston to me when you want a good time," exclaimed W. T. Stephenson of Murphysboro, Ill., with A. G. Schrader they are the only ones from that district.

From Savannah is Harry J. Butler with his wife and Miss Anna C. Purcell. They are a trio of entertainers.

Judge Edward W. Schoelerling, Judge D. H. Prior and Exalted Ruler Joseph Hoffer of Lodge No. 48, are seen with fifty members. Warren Hastings of the same lodge is seeing them a few parts about Boston.

The cowboy artist, Charles Russell, who sold two of his productions to the Prince of Wales while he was in the town, Great Falls, Mont., is here with No. 440. L. L. Stonnist, last exalted ruler is with him.

"How do I like Boston? Rinehold William Paine, ex-Mayor of Hollywood, Cal. "pretty girls here. Pretty hot, though," he continued.

Harry Hyman, one of the Chicago Elks, strolled in front of Bacon Rehabilitation, "Boston is a great place."

Dressed in white shirts and palm beach suits made of material manufactured in Fall River mills a delegation of Elks from that city will arrive in Boston at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Headquarters will be taken up at Berkeley Hall.

WHO'S WHO AND WHO'S HERE AMONG VISITING ELKS

Mrs. Walter Donney, Pana, Ill. — May Crotti, Baltimore

Principal J. H. Bennett is the Benton High School, Cass, and his wife are with the Stockton Lodge, No. 278. Joseph Town Clerk J. M. Cummings.

Bertha G. Dempsey of Miami, Oklahoma, composer of the popular Elks' Triumphal March, which was played in front of the headquarters of the Elks, won high praise.

More than 300 members of New Bedford Lodge, No. 73, arrived to take part in the parade. Mortor G. Sartoris is the exalted ruler.

Dr. J. L. Chase of Berwick, Me., a member of Lodge No. 184, Dover, N. H., has the distinction of sporting more diamonds than any of the visiting Elks in Boston. The Doctor is a regular walking jewelry store and a nice fellow well met.

Captain Arthur G. Barry of Joseph Avenue Police Station, Rochester, New York, was just itching to "take in" a suspicious character that he saw acting strangely around some ladies outside of a Back Bay hotel.

"Boston has some of the nicest Summer drinks that any city can boast of. I never felt so cool and independent of the heat as right here," remarked Charley Gibbons of Montpelier Lodge, No. 824.

Richard T. Howard, local publicity director for the convention, has piled up a mountain of publicity through his zeal and popularity.

If all the policemen in Wilkesbarre, Pa., are of the same mould as Pat Conlon and John Ritzemer who are "delegating" here, "Coaltown" is surely well protected splendid trip and a "good time." They're both well over six feet tall.

Clarence Willard (no relation to Jess), one of the Western delegates, is the champion "streicher" of all Elks. Normally of only average height, Clarence mounts into the "hand-me-down-a-cigarette" class by loosening some stray knots in his spinal column.

Conan Doyles among the thousands of Elks are seeking to unravel the "Mystery of the Voltaire." For some secret reason a large number of the Philadelphia delegation refuse to leave their floating hotel.

Brother John H. Jackson from Aberdeen, South Dakota, admits being the handsomest Elk in captivity. "They told me there were no good-looking girls in Boston," he said. "Somebody lied to me. They're peaches. I am all ready for bids, ladies."

Grand Tyler "Joe" Mayer of Assist. Grand Tyler Garnet R. Fleming of Shelbyville, Indiana, is standing close by the taxi men "Don't want to wander too far afield, alone," Fleming tells his friends.

Globe, Arizona, assayed the role of guide for a party of friends. "Having visited Boston once before, you know." The party got lost in the maze of streets leading out of Park Square.

Delegate Howard C. Altmore of Port Chester, N. Y., is making his "first and last visit to Boston." Howard confided to friends his desire to kill, maim or otherwise discomfort the man responsible for laying out our streets.

20,000 ELKS IN FROLIC AT NANTASKET

Gala Day of Convention One Long to Be Remembered by Delegates

Twenty thousand Elks, from Main street, Skagway, to Main street, New York, descended upon Nantasket Beach and frolicked in the Atlantic until the shoreline crept up at least several feet.

It was the gala day of the annual convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and not an Elk in the crowd remembered anything except that the sun was shining and that the day was theirs.

From Salt Lake City and Dallas, Tex., they ate clams and lobsters and watched the sun set on the largest body of water that many of them had seen in many a day.

Fireworks blazed in the sky when daylight had gone and good wishes were on everyone's tongue when Mayor Curley finished his eleven o'clock toast.

All evening long the harbor rang with snatches of song and merriment as tired delegates and their friends made their way cityward on the crowded Nantasket steamers.

Pretty girls from inland towns and cities dipped their toes in salt water for the first time in their lives and shouted with delight as the breakers drenched them.

Hotel proprietors and beach merchants agreed to a man that the Elks holiday marked the largest day in the history of the beach. At McPeake's, the Atlantic House and the Nantasket Hotel, where shore dinners awaited the throng of visitors, space was taxed to capacity and extra corps of waiters were pressed into service.

Former Exalted Ruler John Cassidy, with the Boston delegation, led the activities of the day, which were impromptu and included anything in the way of entertainment that appealed to the various delegations.

"I seen a splendid time! The Boston beaches are worth the whole trip."

An Indiana delegation, headed by James C. Pierce, made the pronouncement at the close of the day.

1 IN 25 INSANE IN BAY STATE, SAYS EXPERT

One out of every twenty-five persons in Massachusetts is insane, according to Dr. William A. Hester, superintendent of the Worcester State Hospital.

The State is now caring for 20,000 mentally deficient people, Dr. Hyland declares in a paper going to be published today in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, and the problem of mental disease was become one of the most important confronting the medical profession of Massachusetts.

Appealing to sociologists and biologists to co-operate with the psychiatrist in an effort to prevent this great waste of human material, Dr. Bryan says there are almost as many causes for these mental wrecks as there are people suffering from them.

Some of them are physical," he stated, "some of them are psychogenical and some of them are environmental; and to decide which is which in an individual case will require the efforts of everyone who can throw any light upon the problem.

"When you consider that in the State of Massachusetts one out of every twenty-five persons needs some portion of his life in a hospital for mental disease, when you realize that 70 per cent of every dollar appropriated by the State of Massachusetts goes to the maintenance and upkeep of the hospitals for mental disease, when you consider that the State is caring for 20,000 mentally inefficient people, you will probably be willing to agree that the magnitude of the problem is a great one and is not to be solved by any one narrow viewpoint brought to bear upon the situation.

"It will require the organized efforts of every type of worker interested in the welfare of the human race, working, perhaps, under the direction of the psychiatrist, to focus acute light upon the method of preventing this enormous waste of human material."

BROCKTON TAILOR COMMITS SUICIDE

Brockton, July 10.—Cornelius Ballyron, sixty-six, a tailor, of No. 50 Allen street, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. The body was discovered in his room by his landlady, Mrs. Nell D. Crosby.

Mr. Salmon had cancer, was out of work and was despondent.

ROOMER STOLE 19-YEAR WIFE, HUBBY SAYS

When a truck driver entered the door of his home as a roomer, his wife's love for him flew right out the window and perched on the seat of the ice truck the roomer guided, says Jesse N. Sargent, of Columbia avenue, Somerville.

Although Sargent has lost the love and companionship of his wife of eighteen years standing he is still an optimist in some things. Witness the $25,000 alienation suit he has filed against the truck driver, Michael J. Tyrell, also of Somerville.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

The aggrieved husband confesses he doesn't know where a truck driver would get $25,000, but he hopes for the best.

"We got along happily until two and a half years ago when Tyrell secured a room at our home. My wife had never seen him before, but apparently they became infatuated at once," Sargent complains.

"I was told my wife had been meeting Tyrell on the outside and finally, in August, 1922, I asked him to leave. It was too late, however. The damage was done and my wife and the truck driver continued to meet on the outside.

GIVES ROOMER BEATING.

"On the night of June 2, 1924, I met them together on the street. I went after the truck driver and gave him a beating.

"My wife hasn't been home since, and I don't know where she is now."

The Sargents have two children, a boy aged seventeen and a girl aged eighteen. Mrs. Sargent, before her marriage, was Miss Lenora Potter.

ARIZONA LIBRARY HEAD VISITS HUB

A visitor to Boston, today, is Miss Cora B. Cronin, State law and legislative librarian of Phoenix, Ariz., who was on the third instant, at Saratoga Springs, New York, elected president of the National Association of State Libraries.

Miss Cronin, a native of Charlestown, is well known in the library world having been State law and legislative librarian for the State of Arizona since that State was admitted to the Union in 1912.

SOLDIERS MADE BLIND BY BAD AMMUNITION

Mexico City, July 10.—Lieutenant-Colonel Jose Ortiz, chief of staff of General Arnulfo R. Gomez, commanding the rebel garrison, declared today that 500 federal soldiers were blinded when defective ammunition exploded during the recent battle between the United States air liners and rebel troops, which resulted in the capture of Vera Cruz by the federal revolution, exploded. It also was stated that several soldiers had lost their lives in similar explosions.

A semi-official statement attributes the responsibility to Mexican agents sent to the United States to buy ammunition. It is said they bought the oldest stock in order to collect the largest possible commission.

CHILD'S LEG TRODDEN UNDER HORSE'S HOOF

Margaret Barrett, seven, of No. 21 Brooks street, East Boston, was knocked down and stepped on by a horse opposite her home and sustained a fracture of both bones of the lower right leg, this noon. She was taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital in a passing auto. The horse belonged to Peter Gerard of No. 94 Chelsea street, East Boston. The child was later removed to the Boston City Hospital.

BABY HURLED 20 FEET IN CRASH IS UNHURT

John Cronin, aged 24 of No. 11 Wendell street, North Station, driving an automobile in Atlantic avenue, South Boston, this morning, struck a baby carriage and threw it 20 feet. The baby, Ruth Dolan, aged 1 year, of No. 11 Wendell street, was not injured. The carriage was not damaged.

A thousand-to-one John Cain, of No. 9 Wendell street, South Boston, escaped injury in the smash-up. The child was tossed to the street and escaped without a scratch.

BOY DROWNS WHEN COUSIN'S AID FAILS

Brockton, July 10.—Axel Erickson, aged 13, of Union road, drowned in Hunter's Pond near Hunter street, despite the effort of a cousin, Irene Hackstrom of 22 Shaw avenue, West Bridgewater, to save him. The cousin, who cannot swim, attempted to walk out to a rock in the pond. His cousin could not swim, however, and was forced to swim to shore. Erickson, unable to get his head above water, nearly broke his cousin's neck in his struggles. After futile attempts to grasp Axel, he was forced to hold to the rock in order to save himself.

FOREST FLAME NEARS TOWNS IN MAINE

Only Heavy Rain Can Stop Spreading Blaze; 12,000 Acres Burned

Bangor, Me., July 10.—According to reports received here from the lines of fighters battling the forest fires to the north, 12,000 acres have already been burned. The men say only a heavy rain will save towns in northern counties threatened by the blaze.

A twenty-minute thunder shower had little or no effect on the fire.

Back-firing is the most effective method being used by the hundreds of firefighters at present.

Stories to the effect that Masardis and other places had been or were about to be destroyed are proven false. The fires are fought north of Ashland are several miles away now.

All the burned over ground had a light growth, having been seeded recently for pulp wood and timber by two large companies.

LUCKY STRIKE

Cleanliness and Care in Manufacture

Every Lucky Strike factory is a model of sanitation. Read how Alfred W. McCann, the noted food expert describes one of our factories: "White walls and ceilings, floors as clean as freshly chiseled marble, cutting machines and wrapping machines that take away from the human hand all detail and leave nothing to the human supervision but the watchfulness of trained eyes."

Facts About Taxes on Cigarettes

WE call particular attention to the statements made in the advertisement adjoining this editorial column.

This advertisement, the purpose of which is to win new friends for Lucky Strike cigarettes, incidentally emphasizes the matter of high taxes on cigarettes.

To those who are intimate with such matters there is, of course, no surprising statement made.

To the general public, though, we believe it will be surprising to learn that nearly half of what they pay for cigarettes goes to the government for taxes.

The internal revenue stamp on a package of twenty Lucky Strike cigarettes costs you six cents. On a tin of one hundred the revenue stamp costs you thirty cents.

So nearly fifty cents out of every dollar you spend for cigarettes is spent by you for taxes.

This is certainly the heaviest tax on an article of daily and universal consumption.

The Tobacco Industry and Taxes

The aggregate tax paid by the tobacco business is with one exception, income taxes, the largest item of internal revenue the federal government receives. Last (fiscal) year it amounted to $300,014,050.84.

Of this enormous amount of money the cigarette industry paid $182,715,735.93, or nearly two-thirds of the total tax paid by the entire tobacco business.

The immediately important point of the foregoing is the following: We believe you will appreciate that when nearly fifty cents of every dollar paid by you for cigarettes goes to the government, you must receive in cigarettes a value in return for your money that is rarely given in any commodity.

That the public generally appreciates this great value is shown by the enormous increase in the consumption of cigarettes.

Our reasons for this tax free offer

We know this offer induces men to try Lucky Strikes—it "Wins New Friends."

We know that a large percentage of those who get acquainted with Lucky Strikes adopt them.

This isn't philanthropy nor propaganda—just good business, as you'll agree.

The offer is limited. We cannot afford to keep it up.

We make it sensationally generous so as to attract attention.

We are not giving money away for the offer accomplishes its purposes: Lucky Strike "Wins New Friends." Our volume increases.

Super-quality

It is only by immense volume that we can produce such an aristocratic cigarette as Lucky Strike at such a democratic price.

Its quality is supreme because it has that costly, extra process, toasting, which improves the flavor and adds to the taste of even the finest tobaccos that are used in Lucky Strikes.

We urge you to participate in this offer—we want you to get acquainted with Lucky Strikes.

We know a trial will make you a permanent customer of ours.

EVANGELIST'S SON IS AUTO SUICIDE

J. Wilbur Chapman, Jr., Drives Car Into Hudson River

New York, July 10.—The police have succeeded in establishing the identity of a man who drove his coupe wildly down the steep hill on West Ninety-sixth street with its siren shrieking and plunged with the automobile over the pier head into the Hudson River.

He was Wilbur Chapman, Jr., of Flushing, Queens, son of the famous evangelist and a building contractor with offices in Manhattan. His wife is spending the Summer at Lebanon, N. H. The body has not been recovered.

Chapman sat rigidly at the wheel of the automobile as it dashed down the hill in its spectacular run. Its progress was temporarily halted at the foot of the incline when the barrier of the New York Central tracks barred the way. The watchman rushed out of his cabin and demanded of the man at the wheel, "What do you think you are doing?" Receiving no reply he raised the barrier. Instantly the car strated again on the mad flight.

Racing on, it climbed the pier head, struck a heavy stringpiece at the end of the pier, turned over and fell into the river, with its white hood driver still at the wheel.

George McCafferty, the gatekeeper, said he opened the gate because he thought the man wanted to turn around.

2 MORE COUPONS NEEDED FOR MOTHERS' OUTING

Mothers and children of the sailor tenements and sun-baked streets will have the opportunity to take that trip to Nantasket on the Boston American outing on Tuesday next.

Don't miss it! Clip the coupons!

Save all of them, and present them at No. 248 Devonshire street, on Saturday in return for steamboat tickets and extra white slips.

All for a dime, a tenth part of a dollar, as a side a boy barker would say, and a really exquisite meadow lurker would make the walkin' rung had an extra prepositional phrase.

Francis S. Cummings

But there you are! Here's what you need to make the trip: Coupons—as on the one in this day, cut from the Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday issues of this newspaper this week. One for each person.

Here's what you get in return: One steamboat ride along Dorchester bay, on a boat that will not be crowded; a delightful stay at Nantasket, with the magnificent beach, its pounding surf, its cool comfort; entertainment; plenty of refreshments, and a pleasant sail back in the cool of the evening.

Outing Headquarters are at No. 248 Devonshire street, and the matron in charge requests us to say to arrive early and avoid the rush.

While there will be two boats, carrying 2,000 passengers, indications are that the demand for room will exceed the supply. First come, first served, is the motto, so be early on the ground with your coupons and don't be one of the disappointed ones.

There are certain things to bear in mind if you plan to make the trip and wish to escape confusion and unpleasantness.

For instance, don't show up at Rowe's Wharf on Tuesday and expect to get accommodations in return for five Boston American coupons. You positively must present the coupons at the outing headquarters for tickets.

TWO BOATS TO GO.

In the second place, take the boat assigned to you. There will be two, as has been said. They will have at different hours.

To each boat will be assigned all the passengers it can carry under the law. Those assigned to the first boat cannot travel on the second, for that would displace someone else.

Tell the man at the outing headquarters which boat you want to take and it is probable he can fix you up, but once you have decided, make the boat you have settled upon.

You will be told the hours of sailing when you present the coupons, and will be given the other essential information you will want.

At Nantasket your tickets will entitle you to bathhouse facilities, entrance to Paragon Park, with its myriad of amusements, refreshments.

To General Manager Frederick L. Lane of the Nantasket Steamship Company must go much of the credit for the outing. He has placed two boats at the disposal of the Boston American and is an enthusiastic backer of the plan to give the mothers and children of the city a little bit of pleasure.

Others assisting, by contributing supplies and in other ways, are: Francis S. Cummings of the Cummings Milk Company; J. Howard Bushway of the Bushway Ice Cream Company; Manager Sargent of the Berwick Cake Company; Frank Archer of the Moxie Company; Joseph Bono of Paragon Park, and H. Sarkis of the Sagamore bathhouses.

Facts to Remember About Mother's Outing Trips

The second set of coupons will appear in the Boston American next Monday, July 14, and will be followed with another each day for five days. When these coupons are presented in person at the American Outing Headquarters, they will be exchanged for one ticket and a tag admitting the holder to Paragon Park for the second boat trip.

Outing headquarters, No. 248 Devonshire street, will open at 8 a. m. each Saturday.

First come, first served.

Only 3,000 persons permitted by law on the two boats.

The law requires that every passenger, even babies, must have own ticket on board the steamboat.

First boat leaves Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company wharf on Atlantic avenue at 9:15 each Tuesday morning. Returning it will leave Nantasket at 3:30 p. m.

The second boat leaves the Atlantic avenue wharf at 10:45 the same morning, and returning leaves Nantasket at 4:30 in the afternoon.

Be sure and read your ticket.

Do not take coupons to the boat, as they will not be accepted.

Those who failed to get on the first trip, be sure to start next Monday saving the second series coupons. Five are needed, consecutive dates.

Get entertainment tag at Outing Headquarters when exchanging coupons.

More Finny Dishes

I'VE received some many times requests for the various fish when they are in season and I think it may help you if I give you a chart which will show the fish now in season.

Bluefish is in season from May to October, although it is in the market all year round. This fish is good for frying, broiling and baking. Choose a thick fish for broiling and baking and "baby bluefish" for frying. Bluefish run from ½ lb. to 10 lbs.

Cod, as surely all New Englanders know, is in season all the year and are good for frying, boiling and for chowder. They run from 2 lbs. up and should have small bright eyes, bright red gills, firm flesh and bright skin. Should be sealed before cooking.

Eels, small ones, are in season from April to October and should be bought alive. They are best crumbed and fried in deep fat. Flaked and cooked for creaming and salads can be bought by the pound.

Cels are in season all the year and are good for frying and for chowder.

Flounders are in season in the Spring and Summer and are good for frying, broiling and baking. Skinned and boned flounder fillets are sold under the name of "sole." In buying flounder, choose one as thick as possible.

Mackerel are in season from March to November, but are at their best in June. The small mackerel are called tinkers and are never split and broiled. Broil are in season from May to September and are good for broiling and are delicious for chowder, if you are careful of the bones.

Kennebec salmon is in season from April 15 to October 1, and is a favorite for boiling, frying, broiling and baking. Choose one around the shoulder for boiling. Salmon are in season from March 15 and are good for boiling, frying, broiling and baking. Choose one around the shoulder for boiling.

Smelts are in season from October to March 15 and are good for frying, broiling and boiling.

Swordfish are in season from May to October and are good for broiling and baking.

CODFISH PUDDING.

Free 2 lbs. of codfish, remove all of skin and bones, cut fish in small pieces, put in saucepan with cold water and bring to a boil, drain off water, add 2 lbs. potatoes, boiled and mashed, 2 eggs, 2 tbsps. of butter, sauce and pepper to taste. Beat the 2 eggs and mix in with the fish and potatoes, add enough milk to make a soft mixture, season with salt and pepper to taste, add 1 cup of milk and 1 cup of cream, put in a buttered baking dish, cover with cracker crumbs, pour over 1 cup of milk and 1 cup of cream, bake in moderate oven for 30 minutes. Serve with parsley and serve with butter sauce. Serve with tomato sauce. Serve with tartare sauce or tomato sauce.

TOMATO TARTARE.

Heat 2 cups of strained tomato. Heat 2 tbsps. of oil and stir in 2 tbsps. of flour. Blend. Add the tomato, stirring until smooth. Add 2 tbsps. of minced parsley, 1 tbsp. of finely minced onion or onion juice, 1 tbsp. of lemon juice and 2 tbsps. of capers.

This sauce can be served hot or by adding ¼ cup of mayonnaise and be eaten cold with fish dishes.

In case you should raise your rent, there is no reason to be alone on Duxbury beach, for there will be another on July 22. It will be conducted under the same rules as govern the one arranged for next Tuesday.

But be who neglects that outing wisely, in this case, to the neglect of a-hol spell, a trip to Nantasket means more than it ever meant before.

Today is the day to start making plans, if you have neglected it heretofore. Get the coupons, and from each paper, present them Saturday, at No. 248 Devonshire street. Be at Rowe's Wharf Tuesday at the hour set, and leave the rest to the entertainment committee.

A. V., PEABODY, MASS.

Q—I served from May 15, 1917, to June 15, 1919, and was honorably discharged but did not receive a gold badge. Can I get one?

A—Honorable discharge buttons and emblems may be had on application to the Adjutant General's office, Washington, D. C. Application must be received after Feb. 1, 1924, except where a veteran is during the six months immediately preceding that date. The veteran's honorable discharge must accompany the application for the button or emblem.

F. D., VERDUN, CANADA.

Q—I was a soldier supporter and served for the U. S. Army. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A—The bonus law specifically provides that soldiers who were employed in the United States Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard of the United States during the World War, are not entitled to the bonus.

R. D. M., ST. JOHNSBURY, VT.

Q—I am a World War veteran, thirty-six years of age and somewhat handicapped but did not receive compensation for my disability. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A—If you were honorably discharged from the service, you are entitled to the bonus, regardless of whether you received compensation for your disability or not.

G. McK., E. MANCHESTER, N. H.

Q—I was a soldier in the World War and was discharged on account of disability. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A—Bonus applications from veterans must be filed on or before July

FINANCE

— By B. C. Forbes —

Were there no difference of opinion this would be a dull old world. Some problems cannot agree on either. Take quarrels.

J. Heller Mulligan, Philadelphia, writes in part:

"Your articles are always optimistic. You see 200 industries and twenty-five railroads approved their dividends in June. These many, nearly one-third of all, have thus distributed and will distribute over $400,000,000 in cash, a much greater amount than ever before. The investments are multiplying, as business is done, but the people are small.

"Most of these country clubs in Florida are counting upon the Bermuda and to become rivals of the Vanderbilt show and handle millions from the rich. They are going to Wyoming instead of the resorts of the north. Miami, Palm Beach—the fortunes and the Armoks of today are to be found in the Scarsdales. Why? Because I will not want my subscription to continue. It would offend my conscience. That is about the case in all right—but some people like that can be sent to sea of sand. Abercrombie!

Next let us hear from Mr. Green (radio, Inc.) of Bluefield, West Virginia. He says:

"I note that there is no mention made of the rider financing, which is extremely bullish. It is a well known fact that a fund of a large sum is usually subscribed for at this time, and I am of the opinion that a fund of a large enough magnitude or near enough to it to satisfy the question is said but the market is already discounting this, and it alone does not warrant a bull market. In fact, if financing is all there would be a good reaction, but for sane, farmers' income is very far off to be realized. The prospects on the crops are such that the farmer may get more money for his products for less, but the quantity is so small and so few that he will be on the same basis at the end of the year.

"As some commodities are low in price and others are on the upward trend, so far as prices are concerned, may indicate a turn for the deep, and this will be the signal for new buying power to feel itself before the market can make an upward or major bull movement, now more active issues must first get down to a price level of the average before any great amount of accumulation can take place.

On the other hand it would seem San Francisco realizing a recovery column would indicate that business would in some manner follow, and during the months of July and August a big amount of accumulation can take place.

Perhaps my suggestions may be of interest, albeit I am only a part on this Coast."

The next letter comes from the editor of the Daily Metal Reporter, Joseph Zimmerman. He writes:

"Your editorial of the 3rd inst. will approximate the one referred to that we do not care to reproduce it as the position therein enclosed is entirely correct. Under events since then we would double all early notice to acquire business, and especially under events since then we would.

"The importance of a good crop in the low prices of food is not an indorsement of business, but a business man, be he manufacturer or jobber or retailer, can make up his supplies for the most future. There is little doubt now as to the next year. President will be the Administration is pledged to avoid taxes and business men may expect further relief unless Coolidge is elected. Confidence in order to attract large investments, discovery will of course be made and gradual, but it will continue and unless the industrial leaders of the country are wrong, the business revival should be well under way before the end of September."

Dun's compilation of wholesale prices shows a slight advance and Irving Fisher's compilation shows an attractive showing for the month of July.

Did you notice the increase in average clearings for the week? The New York clearings reached a new high record.

Surely no reason for alarm or danger signals.

Democrats Propose to Move White House to Wall Street

The proud old Democratic party proposes to substitute the House of Morgan for the White House.

After spending more than two weeks in deliberations, the Democrats decided to commit political suicide.

They have nominated for President of the United States John W. Davis, attorney for J. P. Morgan and Company, international bankers and fiscal agents for the British government.

By this action the Democratic party abandons its traditional position of being a party of the people and announces itself frankly to be the party of the corporations.

The people of the country, however, in reality have cause for being deeply grateful for this kind of nomination by the Democrats.

The Democratic party, instead of being secretly controlled by the bosses, is now openly controlled by the bosses, just exactly like the Republican party.

In the November elections no progressive or liberal minded citizen will be fooled into voting for the Democratic ticket because he sees at the head of that ticket the Democratic emblem which used to be the emblem of the people.

Every voter will now know that if he wants to cast his vote for a man that the bosses have NOT chosen he will have to go outside both the old parties.

The common people, both Republicans and Democrats, are thus plainly directed to the ranks of a third party, organizing with such spontaneous support from all sections of the country.

The candidate of that third party will now draw the progressive votes of both the old parties. Mr. Davis will appeal to the conservative reactionary voters, already perfectly satisfied with Mr. Coolidge.

The arrogance of the Republican bosses was manifested at Cleveland when, upon a platform which defended the indefensible corruption of the last administration, they nominated a ticket guaranteed to continue the last administration's policies.

The arrogance of the Democratic bosses is now manifested when, in the face of a nation-wide demand to drive privilege, plutocracy and corruption out of Washington, they nominate the legal adviser of a banking house that represents chiefly privilege and plutocracy and is the most sinister money power in this country.

Mr. Davis is an able lawyer, a graceful speaker, a charming personality and a fine gentleman! He is also, next to former Justice Clarke of the Supreme Court, the most devoted advocate in the country of the covenant of the League of Nations.

Big business will pay him the compliment of making money contributions to his campaign, perhaps half as much as they will contribute to Mr. Coolidge.

The Republican convention offered a presidential candidate who is eminently satisfactory to big business, a man who has a cabinet in which big business is visibly and ably represented.

The Democratic convention has sought to outdo the Republican convention by offering the country an invisible government of plutocracy, for plutocracy and by plutocracy's agents.

And both conventions nominated for President the man who is the personal choice of the House of Morgan.

Japan Is Agitated

But She'll Get Over It

In Japan recently, at all the Shinto shrines, there were great prayer meetings.

The divine beings of the shrines were urged to aid the people "in these troublesome times when the Japanese race is insulted." Asiatic exclusion from the United States was meant.

Some Japanese take seriously what they imagine to be their RIGHT to colonize the United States. What is all the more remarkable, as they will not under any circumstances permit the Chinese to colonize any part of Japan's territory.

Japanese are urged "never to forget the intolerable insult inflicted upon Japan by America." They are told that they must "prepare to avenge the honor of the fatherland when the occasion comes."

Too bad they feel so badly about it, but you can't wonder. Thousands of them have seen California, and would like to possess it. After awhile, they will come to realize that it is natural for one hundred and twelve million people in the United States, whose descendants will soon number two or three hundred millions, to keep for those descendants what their fathers cleared and civilized.

4,300,000 Voters Can't Read

Perhaps They Can Think

Millions will be horrified to learn from the National Education Association at Washington that 4,300,000 citizens entitled to vote in the coming election ARE UNABLE TO READ OR WRITE. It is shocking, but very likely, many of those that cannot read CAN THINK. Probably every one of the millions of illiterates knows enough to vote against bad conditions, bad government. That, after all, is what the voter needs to do.

It is a good thing to modify our vanity to remember that the much despised Bolshevik government, as soon as it got power, started in to teach the entire population to read and write, and is accomplishing the task rapidly.

Money Well Spent

And a Good Sign

A good sign in this country is the willingness of rich men to give money for education. Harvard needed ten millions of dollars for new buildings and the endowment of scientific research. More than eight million dollars have already been given, including George F. Baker's gift of $5,500,000. How much better to contribute to the education of others than to build a foolish grave monument to your own memory—for others to mock.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

BY HELEN ROWLAND

BLESSED, my daughter, is the woman that doth not talk herself too SERIOUSLY.

Now it came to pass that at the christening of a Princess of Babylon neither the good fairies nor the wicked fairies were present.

For the King said, "Go to, I will not let Peter Pan!"

And lo, the wicked fairies, hearing this, were exceeding wroth, and plotted together to smite the child upon the girl-child.

And the first said, "I shall endow this child with a plain face, so that all men shall turn from her."

And the second said, "I shall bestow upon her a sharp tongue, wherewith she shall cut her own throat whensoever she openeth her lips."

And the third declared, "I shall make her to be ill fortune in love and unhappiness in marriage, for I can think of no greater evil."

And thereupon they rejoiced together in their wickedness.

Now it so happened that a good fairy overheard them, in passing, and straightway herself now to outwit them in their evil works.

And when she had taken counsel with her heart, she clapped her hands and cried joyfully, "Hola, hola, hola! I HAVE it. Verily, I am a Wiz and a Wonder!

Helen Rowland

"For, behold, I shall bestow upon this woman-babe that which shall make her plain face INTERESTING in the eyes of men!

"Yea, I shall give unto her that which shall soften the sharp edge of her tongue and make her words famous in the Land.

"I shall endow her with that which shall make her to smile at all her tribulations and to laugh at all her heartaches and to endure all the sorrows of marriage with cheerfulness.

"Lo, I shall give her a SENSE of HUMOR!"

And so it came to pass that the damned waxed into happy womanhood and was contented and merry and beloved all the days of her life!

For, verily, verily, in a world of vicissitudes, a Sense of Humor is Heaven's greatest gift to Woman!

Yea, it is a staff to uphold her in sorrow, a draught to refresh her in dullness and a light to guide her at all times.

It covereth her vanity and was an armor; it filleth her spirit with sympathy; it chereth and doeth a good like wine.

Yea, blessed is the woman that doth not take herself too SERIOUSLY, for she beareth a charmed life. And neither witches nor men can harm her!

Verily, verily a little Sense of Humor is a wonderful thing!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

I LOVE the gay romances that the poets used to sing
In days when Earth was bright and fair and life was at the Spring;
the strange and stirring myths of old, of Circe and her wiles, of men maids with their flowing hair, of lovely sunken isles. I love the stories men have told from days of long ago, the fairy legends drifting down on all the winds that blow. In lands of sun and lands of snow brave tales are told and sung, men hear their ringing sentences in every clime and tongue. And on inviting, booklined shelves I find good stories, too; they tempt me with their clever themes, the old as well as new. But best of all I love to read the stories, sad and sweet, that Time has written on each face I pass upon the street. Each face I pass the whole day long is like an open book; and one may show the cruel sneer, the cunning, artful look. On one is innocence and peace and all things fresh and fair; the next, perhaps, is marked by pain with bitter lines of care. And some I find so bright and pure, so free from taint and stain they give me back my trust in men and faith glows bright again.

THE HELPING HAND

Letters Not Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls or Anonymous Letters. No Names Published.

His Task Is Hard

Editor Helping Hand:

I am sixteen years old and am the only support of my poor mother and brothers. Five weeks ago while at work I cut my hand and blood-poisoning set in. Yesterday, while at the doctor's, I lost all of my courage, as the doctor had to open my hand in another place. It made me feel blue, with five younger brothers to care for. Has anybody any clothes for them? Anything will be much appreciated, as mother is very handy with the needle. They are two, four, nine, eleven and thirteen years old.

FRANKIE

It Is Appreciated

Editor Helping Hand:

I have the following things which might help someone in need. These things are all good except the boy's knickers, which are worn at the knee, but I am sending cloth to patch them so they can be mended. If you will send me some addresses, I'll gladly send them parcel post. I also have some white pieces for Mrs. A. R.

MRS. H.

Thank you. Your welcome list was too long to publish. You have been sent the address of Mrs. A. R., and also that of two mothers who can use all you offer.

Needs Night's Rest

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there anyone who has a double couch and mattress that they don't want? Would you mind thinking of me, as we would sleep much better these hot nights. I am a poor widow with three children—boys, ten, eleven and twelve, and a girl, thirteen.

MRS. F. H.

Just What's Needed

Editor Helping Hand:

I want to help in my poor way the wonderful work you are carrying on. I have several dresses, some are cotton and some woolen. Also a nice, warm coat for a girl of twelve or thirteen, and the dresses are for girls from seven to eleven. There are some stockings and shoes and underthings, and there are a few dresses that would help some woman, perhaps, around size 42 bust. If you will send me the address I shall be very happy to send the articles.

E. D. G.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. E. M., who wears size 42, and has four little girls between the ages you mention.

Can't Get Work

Editor Helping Hand:

My father just moved here, expecting to get work in the mill, but the mills are working only two days a week and the oldest boy was laid off last week, so that no one is working at present. The two boys could get jobs in stores, perhaps, but they have no clothes to wear. My father is sixty years old and my stepmother is forty-eight. The rest of the family are boys eighteen, fifteen, fourteen, and six, and girls, seventeen, thirteen, eleven, nine, and eight. Hope someone will help my people.

PAUL.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON "LET IT ALONE"

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PASCAL said that most of the evils of life come from "man's being unable to sit still in a room."

Certain it is that we have all often fared badly by acting without sufficient thought beforehand.

The trouble is with our inherited traits. In the simple early times of the human race the man who worked the hardest, the man who killed the most deer, the man who caught the most fish, was the man who succeeded.

All the inducements of early society were to immediate action, and all the penalties fell on the man who paused.

Times have changed, however. Civilization has become complex. It is no more so important to get up and go somewhere as to sit still long enough to know where you are going.

Back of all the bustling folk who "do things" are the quiet folks who think up things for them to do.

Sailors could not find their way in the markless waste were it not for the dreamy astronomer gazing at the stars and the mathematician poring over his logarithms.

All the bustling activity you see in the factory, the department store, even in the battle, depends for its efficiency upon some brooding mind that plans in the stillness of thought.

Nothing is idler than the person who is always busy, just as no one says less than the person who talks all the time.

Every actual deed is a sort of running jump, where how far you jump depends on how far you run.

GARRETT P. SERVISSON A BROTHERHOOD

By Garrett P. Serviss.

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

IT came back again—as I was sure it would—the myth of "Edison's Electric Star." This time, however, Venus was drawing near her inferior conjunction, which occurred on the first of July, before I received the inevitable letter from some one who had seen her light in the West after sundown, and had listened to the voice of the mythmaker telling him that it belonged to "the Wizard of Menlo Park," as he used to be called in the days when this legend took its rise; the days when he was mastering the flickering demon of electricity and making it shine steady, and with marvelous brightness, from a minute black thread of carbon, painfully twisted, and shut up without air, in a little transparent vacuum coffin.

"There is a very brilliant star," runs the letter, "that appears almost directly west about 9 o'clock in the evening. Can you advise me the name of it? Some one informed me that Thomas A. Edison projects a brilliant light which he calls the Edison Star. Have you any records which would indicate this to be a fact?"

Well, no records are needed to prove that Thomas A. Edison projects a brilliant light. All the world has seen it, and sees it nightly. His genius also projects a light. It has burned a place for him in American history. But Edison would be the last man to try to rob Venus of her glory, or to seek to get himself translated to the sky under false pretenses.

I have no doubt that he would say, with me: "What a pity that ignorance should so belittle one of the grandest sights that the surrounding heavens present before the eyes of man, soaring out incomprehensibly from his little globe!"

Those who missed seeing Venus during the past Spring and the first month of Summer—and they, too, missed her who saw her without recognition, and only as an optical phenomenon—will have to wait long for another chance, unless they are willing to get up early in the morning, and see her before daybreak in her role of "Morning Star," which she will begin conspicuously to play before the end of July.

An electric star, indeed! Nothing less than this whole globe, gleaming with all its oceans, its snows, its expanding continents aglow with sunshine, its sheets and rolls of billowy clouds ineffably splendid in the upper daylight, could equal the spectacle that Venus presents, when she glides through the ether only twenty-five or thirty million miles away from us. Clothed in similar royal robes of light, the earth appears to the charmed and wondering eyes that may be looking forth from the midst of her aureole of illuminated atmosphere.

Two sister worlds pass in the night, which is at once both day and night, on the boundless ocean of space. They follow the same leader, the sun, they go with him on his immense journey through the constellations, accompanied by their brothers—little Mercury, mysterious Mars, the giants Jupiter and Saturn, the far-off twins Uranus and Neptune, the crowd of little cherub planets, with a thousand names, and no names, "Eros," "Juno," "Polyhymnia," "Hilda," swimming like purple-sailed nautili, like "little wanton boys that float on bubbles in the Summer sea," that is shored by the Galaxy.

If it were only from a sense of brotherhood, of family ties, for the sake of the relationship and companionship of our earthly mother with these, her planetary kin, we should all know, and rejoice to know, every one of them.

Through the earth, we are of the blood of Venus, of Jupiter, of Mars, and all are of the blood of the great solar giant that lights and warms and guides them and us on their way and our way.

This is our squadron sailing the universal sea; to it we belong, and every member of it is nearer to us in every sort of propinquity than anything else in the universe. All bear a common stamp, the stamp of "the Solar System" which is not the stamp of the system of Sirius, or of the system of Arcturus, or of any system among the stars.

Once-Overs

You Must Work to Keep What You Desire Most.

When a situation or condition is new, you are interested.

The unfolding of something different appeals.

A new face, a new garment, a new friend, a new instructor, piques your curiosity and spurs you to efforts otherwise unthought of.

As soon, however, as you become settled down to the fact that that face, garment, friend, instructor or pupil requires a definite, regular attitude or effort on your part to hold its interest, you become lukewarm.

Now if the facts were known, the interesting part comes after the first flush when you get down to the gradual but steady effort which is necessary if your life is to be seriously affected one way or the other.

It is impossible to carry on any course or friendship and stand still.

There are many who would prefer to stand still rather than put forth personal effort.

There are many, also, who seem to resent the fact that physical or mental effort must be made to keep up conditions they are quite willing to enjoy.

Such natures are shallow and incapable of lasting success.

The test comes when you must work to keep what you desire most.
